Your historically illiterate editorial writer tries to draw high-sounding conclusions and tosses about seeming facts that are, in fact, not at all connected.

The "...monetary union.." of Austria-Hungary did not come to a "...messy end...", rather the political state was dismembered into smaller successor states that were created on the 'seeming' principle of ethnic homogeneity and national determination. Of course, it was not ... creating ethnic Magyars as the largest minority of Europe living outside the borders of their mother country. The successor states have handled their minority problems far worse than they were treated as part of the Kingdom of Hungary.

The "messy end" was imposed by the victors of World War I, in the Treaty of Trianon, each of whom had their own agenda.

This treaty was the first where the victors and losers did not sit down at a table and hammer out a just punishment for the losing side. Not knowing this, the victors, and smaller claimants, put in their claims for the maximum -- figuring they would be bargained down in the process. However, the details were so complicated that the Great Powers figured that if the first draft took 6 months, revisions will take years. So, the first, crude draft was presented on a 'Take it or leave it' basis (if you 'leave it,' a state of war continues to exist and you already lost).

Actually, now that I think of it, your editorial writer exhibits the same misunderstanding and incomprehension that the framers of the Peace Treaty did, especially the US. (And that lack of clear grasp directly led to World War II.)

Respectfully yours
P. Csermely

I am not sure what the point was in today's editorial when it mentioned that the Czech and Hungarian prime-ministers, both of whom oppose the EU fiscal compact, lead countries that were parts of the Austro-Hungarian Dual Monarchy whose "monetary union ....came to a messy end" at the end of the first World War.

Prior to the Compromise of 1867 that restored the historical status of the Hungarian Kingdom, the whole Austrian Empire had a single currency. After 1867, it still did, with finance, together with defence and foreign affairs, continuing to be determined in Vienna for all of Austria-Hungary. What did cause

"the messy end" was not an erroneously conceived currency that, unlike the euro, had existed for centuries, but the dismemberment of the Habsburg Empire especially by the singularly vindictive Treaty of Trianon that resulted in states, two of which, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, have shown their lack of viability by since disappearing.

Arra nem gondol senki, hogy a vasúti közlekedés olcsóbb és biztonságosabb? Az elhagyott vonalak berendezéseit egyszerűen szétlopják. Később - ha a forgalom igényli - újjá kell építeni a szétlopott, tönkrement vonalakat. Ha mégis autóbuszokat akarnak használni, tegyék sinre őket. Kis költséggel át lehet őket alakítani. A teherárú forgalmat is sinre kellene szoktatni. A kamionok teszik tönkre, rongálják az utakat és a településeket. A helyi munkanélküli, képzetlen tömegekkel lehetne karban tartani a töltéseket és épületeket.

Mesterházi: Gyöngye kormány

Ezek a nyomorult agyatempa emberszabásúak még mindig beszélnek? Ők, akik kiárúsították, szétlopták, összehazudozták az országot. A kormányunk nem gyöngye, hanem a nyugati hasonszőrű senkiháziainak a nyomása alatt áll. Ha azt a hazug frátert, aki kilövette a szemeket, nyaklótól osztozta a kölcsön pénzeket lecsuknák, az egész világ "demokratái" antiszemitizmust ordítoznának..
